

Josie Wolanski

Second generation
Story Teller

As the daughter of Polish Holocaust survivors and migrants, my experience has sensitised me to the plight of the underdog, the victim and minority groups.

I received a B.A. Dip.Ed., and a Diploma in Teaching English as a Second Language.

My mother Sabina was a Hidden Child, and fortunate to be helped by the kindness and courage of good people.

In Berlin 2005 at the opening ceremony of the Memorial to the Murdered Jews, she spoke of responsibility, discrimination, prejudice, humanity - the victory of decent people over evil.

She is my inspiration, and through telling my mother's story, I aim to pass on this message to the future citizens of our fragile world.
