

Eleanor Tvina

Volunteer Guide

I was born in South Africa, lived in Israel and came to Brisbane in 1983. I am married and have three children.

My heritage is from Eastern Europe and South Africa. My husband's heritage is from Iraq and Israel. My three children are all born in Australia. This makes us a very multicultural family.

I am a teacher by profession and have worked in an administrative role within our own companies in the Automotive Industry for over 30 years.

I was introduced to Courage to Care through the Jewish Community in Brisbane, and am honoured to be a part of this very worthwhile program.

The message Courage to Care conveys is that as individuals we can stand up against racism, discrimination and bullying. Being involved in this exhibition is a way in which I can contribute.
